Now Arriving at the Final Frontier Galactic Suite Limited Officially Opens Space Hotel After Ten Years

Paris, France. May 17th, 2016. Just ten years ago, this whole experience was figurative, but now, Galactic Suite Limited has officially opened the first ever space-hotel.

“It’s literally amazing,” says Julio Materez, the 42-year-old CEO of Best Western, and first ever guest aboard the Galactic Suite Space Resort. “Don’t get me wrong, it’s absolutely terrifying when you’re on the launch pad, but once you’re out here, it’s completely different. You think getting away to your summer home is quiet. You don’t know quiet ‘till you’re out here.”

The Galactic Suite Limited Space Resort is designed to house guests in their own rooms (pods). The pods are built on Earth and launched into space with the guests already inside. Each pod is approximately 23 feet by 13 feet and houses two guests.

“It’s really special to be able to share this experience with our guests,” says Luger Van Visen, a Galactic Suite official currently aboard the space-hotel. “For many this will be a once-in-a-lifetime experience and I’m so glad I’m part of it!”

The hotel houses up to eight people in four pods. Stays range from three days to one week; a three day stay will cost around $4 million. Galactic Suite reports that the reservation list is a moon’s turn long.

“It’s expensive, I know, but this is an experience that, before this hotel, was only available to those who’d dedicated their lives to aeronautics. But thanks to Galactic Suite, here I am, 42-years-old, just a week of flight training, and I’m in space.”

Galactic Suite Limited is a Barcelona based company. For the last ten years they have been developing technology to bring space to you. The company was founded in 2007 by Xavier Claramunt with the goal of offering suborbital flights, create private space ports, and orbital stations, and bring the every-man to the Moon.
